

Final Project Summary

The objective of this project is to create a digital representation of a cartographic reference of the annexations of the City of Sacramento and a projection of possible future annexation. Using the Sacramento Public Library and its Sacramento Room archives, I was able to use and copy a large-format print of Sacramento City Annexations and its possible growth titled “How Sacramento Can Grow”. I also found and copied multiple city maps from various decades to use as a secondary reference as road names and routes have changed since the creation of the original data. From this physical data I created a digital representation as accurately as possible, but errors are unavoidable due to changes to physical landmarks over the decades or just the general lack of data in certain circumstances. Overall the objective was accomplished and a digital representation of the physical original has been created.
